10. You should know that there are many risks that you may face when dealing in foreign stock exchanges, including for example:
  - Risks of foreign broker bankruptcy.
  - Exchange rate risk.

Leverage is defined as a borrowed capital, used to increase or reduce the potential return on an investment. The Client agrees and acknowledges that marginal trading is based on the leverage applied on the Client’s accounts. The higher leverage, the higher the level of risk and the higher possibility of a profitable return or loss.

The leverage is subject to changes. The Company may, at any time, in its sole discretion, reduce the leverage applied to the Client’s accounts by notifying clients about such changes.

13. ORDER EXECUTION POLICY

This Order Execution Policy (the “Policy”) is an overview of the steps taken by Seldon Investments Ltd (Jordan) (“the Company”) to obtain the best possible result on behalf of its Clients when executing Client orders for all the types of Contracts for Difference (“CFDs”).

This Policy aims to elaborate and clarify how the Clients’ orders are being executed by the Company.

The Company is obliged to execute clients’ orders on terms most favorable to its Clients thus achieving the best possible results across a range of sometimes conflicting factors.

Therefore, this Policy cannot guarantee that the executed price will always be the best price available to the Client in the market at that point in time.

BEST EXECUTION

When executing Orders, the Company takes all sufficient steps to obtain the best possible result for our Clients, taking into account price, costs, speed, likelihood of execution and settlement, size, market impact or any other consideration relevant to the execution of the Order.

Where the Company executes an order on behalf of a Client, the best possible result shall be determined in terms of the total consideration, representing the price of the financial instrument and the costs relating to execution, which shall include all expenses incurred by the Client which directly relate to the execution of the order. For determining the relative importance of the execution factors, the following criteria are taken into account:

- The characteristics of the Client order;
- The characteristics of Financial Instruments that are the subject of that order;
- The characteristics of the execution venues to which that order can be directed.

The Company considers price and costs as the most important execution factors, followed by speed, likelihood of execution, market impact, likelihood of settlement, size and nature of the order. The relative importance attached to these execution factors does not differ across the asset classes traded by the Company.

Importance

Price – Highest Importance

For any given CFD or other Financial Instrument, the Company will quote two prices: the higher price (ASK) at which the Client can buy (go long), and the lower price (BID) at which the Client can sell (go short). Collectively, the ASK and BID prices are referred to as the Company’s prices. The difference between the lower and the higher price of a given Financial Instrument is the spread.

Company’s Prices: The Company will quote to Clients the prices provided by third party reputable external reference sources. The Company’s prices can be found on the Company’s trading platforms. The Company updates its prices as frequently as the limitations of technology and communications links allow.

The main way in which the Company will ensure that the Client receives the best price will be to ensure that the calculation of the bid/ask spread is made with reference and compared to a range of underlying price providers and data sources. The Company reviews at least once a year, its price-feed to ensure that relevant and competitive pricing is offered.

Despite the fact that the Company takes every sufficient step to obtain the best possible result for its Clients, it does not guarantee that when executing an Order its price will be more favorable than one which might be available elsewhere.

Pending Orders: Such Orders as Buy Limit, Buy Stop and Stop Loss, Take profit for opened short position are executed at ASK price. Such Orders as Sell Limit, Sell Stop and Stop Loss, Take profit for opened long position are executed at BID price.

The Company's price for a given CFD is calculated by reference to the price of the relevant underlying asset, which the Company obtains from third party external reference sources. The Company's prices can be found on the Company's website or trading platforms. The Company updates its prices as frequently as the limitations of technology and communications links allow. The Company reviews its third-party external reference sources from time to time to ensure that the data obtained continues to remain competitive. The Company will not quote any price outside the Company's operations time; therefore, no orders can be placed by the Client during that time.

If the price reaches an Order set by the Client such as Stop Loss, Take Profit, Buy Limit, Buy Stop, Sell Limit or Sell Stop, then these Orders are automatically executed. However, under certain trading conditions it may be impossible to execute Orders (Stop Loss, Take Profit, Buy Limit, Buy Stop, Sell Limit or Sell Stop) at the Client's requested price. In this case, the Company has the right to execute the Order at the first available price. This may occur, for example, at times of rapid price fluctuations if the price rises or falls in one trading session to such an extent that, under the rules of the relevant exchange, trading is suspended or restricted, or this may occur at the opening of trading sessions. The minimum level for placing Stop Loss, Take Profit, Buy Limit, Buy Stop, Sell Limit and Sell Stop orders, for a given CFD, is specified in the Client Agreement and/or the Company's website.

Costs – Highest Importance

For opening a position in some types of CFDs the Client may be required to pay commission or financing fees, the amount of which is disclosed on the Company's website.

Commissions: Commissions may be charged either in the form of a percentage of the overall value of the trade or as fixed amounts. More information on commissions can be found on the Company's website and within the client's portal.

Financing Fee/Swap Fee/Roll Over Fee/Storage: Positions held open overnight are subjected to the Swap Rates, amounts charged/ paid, based upon the interest differentials for borrowing or lending one currency against another. However, account(s) not subjected to the Swaps charges are subjected to "Storage" charge, a fixed, negative amount, always charged to clients' accounts.

For all types of CFDs that the Company offers, the commission and financing fees are not incorporated into the Company's quoted prices and are instead charged explicitly to the Client account.

Should the Company at any period of time decide not to charge such costs, it shall not be construed as a waiver of its rights to apply them in the future, with prior notice to the Client as explained in the Client Agreement found on the Company's website. Such notice may be posted on the Company's website.

Speed of Execution – Highest Importance

The Company places significant importance when executing Client Orders and strives to offer high speed of execution within the limitations of technology and communications links. For instance, in cases where Clients are using a wireless connection or a dial up connection or any other communication link that can cause a poor internet connection then this may cause unstable connectivity with the Company's trading platform resulting to the Client placing his Orders at a delay and hence the Orders to be executed at better or worst prevailing price offered by the Company.

Likelihood of Execution – Medium Importance

The Company will arrange for the execution of Client Orders as a principal with respect to CFDs, according to the price feed received from its price-feed providers. The likelihood of execution depends on the availability of prices in the market. In some cases it may not be possible to arrange an order for execution, for example, but not limited to, in the following cases: during news times, trading session start moments, volatile markets where prices may move significantly up or down and away from declared prices, where there is rapid price movement, where there is insufficient liquidity for the execution of the specific volume at the declared price, a force majeure event has occurred etc. In the event that the Company is unable to proceed with an order with regard to price or size or other reason, the order will not be executed. In addition, the Company is entitled, at any time and at its discretion, without giving any notice or explanation to the Client, to decline or refuse to transmit or arrange for the execution of any order or request or instruction of the Client in circumstances explained in the Client Agreement.

Market Impact – Medium Importance

Some factors may rapidly affect the price of the underlying instruments/products from which the Company's quoted price is derived and may also affect other factors listed herein. The Company will take all sufficient steps to obtain the best possible result for its Clients.

Likelihood of Settlement – Low Importance

The Company shall proceed to a settlement of all transactions upon execution of such transactions. The Financial Instruments (CFDs) offered by the Company do not involve the physical delivery of the underlying asset, so they are not settled physically as there would be for example if the Client traded in a Regulated Market, MTF or OTF. All CFDs offered are cash settled and Over the Counter (OTC) traded.

Size of Order – Low Importance

The actual minimum size of an order may be different for each type of Client Account. A lot is a unit measuring the transaction amount, and it is different for each type of CFD. Please refer to the Company's website for the value of minimum size of an order and each lot for a given CFD type. If the Client wishes to execute a large size order, in some cases the price may become less favorable. The Company reserves the right to decline an Order in case the size of the Order is large and cannot be filled by the Company or for any other reason as explained in the Client Agreement.

The Company does not consider the above list exhaustive, and the order in which the above factors are presented shall not be taken as a priority factor. Nevertheless, whenever there is a specific instruction from the Client, the Company shall make sure that the Client's order shall be executed following that specific instruction.

Types of Orders in CFD Trading

The particular characterizing of an Order may affect the execution of the Client's Order. Please see below the different types of Orders that a Client can place:

Market Orders

A Market Order is an Order to buy or sell a CFD as promptly as possible at the prevailing market price. Execution of this Order results in opening a trade position. CFDs are bought at ASK price and sold at BID price. Stop Loss and Take Profit Orders can be attached to a Market Order. Market Orders are offered for all type of accounts.

Pending Orders

This is an Order to buy or sell a CFD in the future at the best available price once a certain price is reached. The Company offers the following types of Pending Orders: Buy Limit, Buy Stop, Sell Limit or Sell Stop Orders to trading accounts for CFDs.

A Pending order is an Order that allows the user to buy or sell a CFD at a pre-defined price in the future. These Pending Orders are executed once the price reaches the requested level. However, it is noted that under certain trading conditions it may be impossible to execute these Orders at the Client's requested price. In this case, the Company has the right to execute the Order at the first available price. This may occur, for example, at times of rapid price fluctuations of the price, rises or falls in one trading session to such an extent that, under the rules of the relevant exchange, trading is suspended or restricted, or there is lack of liquidity, or this may occur at the opening of trading sessions.

It is noted that Stop Loss and Take Profit may be attached to a Pending Order. Also, pending orders are good till cancelled. Pending Orders are offered for all types of accounts. In cases where financial instruments have an expiration date, or where financial instruments have Good till Date (GTD) pending conditions the Company will proceed to delete those orders upon expiration.

Take Profit

Take Profit Order is intended for gaining the profit when the CFD's price has reached a certain level. Execution of this Order results in complete closing of the whole position. It is always connected to an open, market or a pending Order. Under this type of order, the Company's trading platform checks long positions with Bid price for meeting of this order provisions (order is always set above the current Bid price) and it does with Ask price for short positions (the order is always set below the current Ask price).

Stop Loss

Stop Loss Order is used for minimizing of losses if the CFD's price has started to move in an unprofitable direction. If the CFD's price reaches this stop loss level, the whole position will be closed automatically. Such Orders are always connected to an open, market or a pending order. Under this type of orders, the Company's trading platform checks long positions with Bid price for meeting of this order provisions (the order is always set below the current Bid price) and it does with Ask price for short positions (the order is always set above the current Ask price).

Execution Practices in CFDs

Slippage

Slippage may occur when trading in CFDs. This is the situation when at the time that an Order is presented for execution, the specific price showed to the Client may not be available; therefore, the Order will be executed close to or a number of pips away from the Client's requested price. So, Slippage is the difference between the expected price of an Order and the price the Order is actually executed at. If the execution price is better than the price requested by the Client, this is referred to as positive slippage. If the executed price is worse than the price requested by the Client, this is referred to as negative slippage. Please be advised that Slippage is a normal element when trading in CFDs. Slippage more often occurs during periods of illiquidity or higher volatility (for example due to news announcements, economic events and market openings and other factors) making an Order at a specific price impossible to execute. In other words, the Client Orders may not be executed at declared prices.

Slippage may appear in all types of accounts. It is noted that Slippage can occur also during Stop Loss, Take Profit and other types of Orders. The Company does not guarantee the execution of the Client Orders at a price specified. However, the Company shall execute the Client Order at the next best available price from the price the Client has specified under their Order.

RISKS INVOLVED WHEN TRADING IN CFDs

Trading in CFDs involves significant risks that traders must carefully consider before engaging in such activities. One primary risk is market volatility, as CFD prices are directly influenced by the underlying asset's fluctuations, potentially leading to rapid and substantial losses. Leverage amplifies both gains and losses, however traders cannot lose more than their initial investment since they are protected by Negative Balance as per Company's policy. CFDs are also complex financial instruments, requiring a solid understanding of the market and trading strategies. Furthermore, CFDs are subject to liquidity risks, which can make it challenging to execute trades at desired prices during volatile market conditions. Costs like spreads, overnight fees, and commissions can erode profits, especially in frequent trading. Lastly, as CFDs are speculative, traders may experience complete capital loss if market predictions fail. It is essential to assess these risks carefully and employ sound risk management strategies.

Leverage And Margin Risks

Leverage and margin are fundamental aspects of CFD trading but carry significant risks. Leverage allows traders to control large positions with a small initial deposit, magnifying both potential gains and losses. This means a minor adverse market movement can lead to losses exceeding the initial investment. Margin trading requires traders to maintain a percentage of the trade's value as collateral. If the account balance falls below the required margin, the provider may execute a margin call or liquidate positions, often at unfavorable prices. Such scenarios can lead to substantial financial strain, particularly in volatile markets. Proper risk management and a clear understanding of leverage mechanics are essential to mitigate these risks.

Margin Call Policy

A margin call policy outlines the requirements and procedures when a trader's account balance falls below the required maintenance margin in CFD trading. CFDs operate on margin, meaning traders are required to deposit a percentage of the trade's total value as collateral. When market movements lead to losses that reduce the trader's equity below the maintenance margin level, a margin call is triggered.

At this point, the Client may need to add funds to his account to restore the margin balance. If the trader fails to respond or the account equity continues to decline, the Company may liquidate some or all of the open positions to prevent further losses. This automatic action often occurs without prior notice, particularly in highly volatile markets.

Negative Balance Protection

Negative balance protection is a critical safeguard for CFD traders, designed to prevent them from losing more than their deposited funds. Without this protection, the high leverage inherent in CFD trading can result in losses that exceed the trader's account balance, potentially leaving them liable for significant debts to the Company. In extreme market conditions, such as sudden price gaps or high volatility, trades can move against the trader faster than stop-loss mechanisms can react, leading to a negative account balance. Negative balance protection ensures that traders are not held responsible for these excess losses, offering a level of financial security.

REVIEW OF THIS POLICY

The Company reserves the right to review and/or amend its Policy and arrangements whenever it deems this appropriate according to the terms of the Client Agreement. It should be noted that the Company will not individually notify Clients of changes, other than substantial material changes to the Policy. Therefore, Clients should refer from time to time to the client portal for the most up to date version of the Policy.

For further information about this Policy, please send any request and/or questions to the following e-mail: support@windsorbrokers.com. The Company endeavors to answer clearly and within a reasonable time to clients about its best execution policies and arrangements.

14. MARGIN REQUIREMENTS

- 14.1. The margin requirement is considered a collateral for each open position/transaction and is based on the leverage applicable on the Client's accounts. The Client agrees to maintain at all times, without demand from the Company, margin requirements for the open positions/transactions held in the Client's accounts. The Client will, at all times, maintain such margin or collateral for the Client's accounts, as requested. Margin deposits shall be made by wire transfer of immediately available funds, or by such other means as the Company may direct and shall be deemed to have been available when received by the Company.
- 14.2. Accounts where the margin level has dipped to 100% or below of the required margin are considered to be on "margin call". Accounts on "margin call" should be supported with additional funds or reduce their exposure by closing and/or "hedging" open positions to increase the margin level, and remove the account from margin call status. The margin level is always visible on the Trading Platform.
- 14.3. The Client will not receive any notification or message informing them that their Account is on margin call. It is the Client's sole responsibility to always be aware of their margin level and act accordingly to avoid further reduction of their margin level, which may result in a possible "stop out".
- 14.4. The Client furthermore agrees and confirms that margin requirement may be changed by the Company, with or without notice, and that such change shall be applicable to the existing open positions/transactions as well as the transactions that shall take place in the future. In cases where the Client does not meet obligations towards the margin requirements, the Client's accounts becomes subject to "stop out" activity and consequently open positions/transactions may be partially or fully hedged and/or closed/liquidated by the Company. The price levels whereby the Company may hedge and/or liquidate open positions/transactions are based on prevailing market prices and/or last available prices on the specific Financial Instruments.

15. LIQUIDATION OF POSITIONS/TRANSACTIONS

In the event that,

- a. the Client shall fail to timely deposit or maintain margin or any amount hereunder;
- b. the Client (if an individual) passes away, or be judicially declared incompetent, or placed under curatorship or (if an entity) shall be dissolved or otherwise terminated or placed under curatorship;
- c. a proceeding under the Bankruptcy Act and/or any Legislation, an assignment for the benefit of creditors, or an application for a receiver, custodian, or trustee shall be filed or applied for by or against the Client;
- d. attachment is levied against the Client's accounts;
- e. the property deposited as collateral is determined by the Company in its sole discretion, regardless of current market quotations, to be inadequate to properly secure the accounts; or

- f. at any time the Company deems it necessary for its protection for any reason whatsoever, the Company may, in the manner it deems appropriate, close out the Client's open positions/transactions in whole or in part, sell any or all of the Client's property held by the Company, buy any securities, Financial Instruments, or other property for the Client's accounts, and may cancel any outstanding orders/requests and commitments made by the Company for the Client. Such sale, purchase or cancellation may be made at the Company's discretion without advertising the same and without notice to the Client or his/her Business Introducer, agent and/or representative and without prior tender, demand for margin or payment, or call of any kind upon the Client. The Company may sell or purchase the whole or any part thereof free from any right of redemption. It is understood that a prior demand or call or prior notice of the time and place of such sale or purchase shall not be a waiver of the Company's right to sell or buy without demand or notice as herein provided. Subject to applicable laws and rules, and in order to prevent non-permitted trading in debit/deficit accounts, profits on any transactions executed without the Company's express permission, for the Client's account that is debit/deficit at the time the order/request is placed, shall be for the Company's account if the Company in its discretion so elects. Losses on any such transactions shall be jointly and severally borne by the Business Introducer, agent and/or representative if any, and the Client, decision made by the Company in its sole discretion. The Client shall remain liable for and pay the Company the amount of any deficiency in any of the Client's accounts held with the Company resulting from any transaction described above. The Company's determination of the current market value and the amount of additional and/or variation margin shall be conclusive and shall not be challenged by the Client.

16. TRADING LIMITATIONS

- 16.1. The Client agrees and acknowledges that the Company at any time, in its sole discretion, may limit the number of open positions/transactions which the Client may maintain or acquire with the Company, and the Company is under no obligation to effect any transaction for the Client's accounts which would create positions/transactions in excess of the limit which the Company has set. The Client agrees not to exceed the position/transaction limits established for any contract market or type of account, whether acting alone and/or with others at any given time;
- 16.2. The Company, in its sole discretion, reserves the right to change the leverage applied to clients' accounts, provided that, at the time of the conclusion of the transactions, the total number of open positions/transactions, held by the Client's accounts, has reached the preset limitation and/or in cases where the Client has deliberately and/or systematically based on his/her trading strategy or other probable behaviour with an attempt to exploit the ability of using marginal trading, with the aim to increase the potential return of an investment, while such an activity automatically increases the level of risk and the possibility of a loss.

17. ERRORS

- 17.1. It is possible that errors may occur in the prices for Financial Instruments quoted by the Company or its Service Providers due to specific market circumstance or system malfunctions, including but not limited to errors in feeds received from data providers, counterparties, illiquidity or any other reasons. In such circumstances, without prejudice to any rights it may have under the Law, the Company shall not be bound by any contract which purports to have been made (whether or not confirmed by the Company) at a price which:
- a. The Company is able to substantiate to the Client was manifestly incorrect at the time of the transaction; or

- b. Was, or ought to have reasonably been known by the Client to be incorrect at the time of the transaction.

17.2. In the above-mentioned cases the Company reserves the right to either:

- a. cancel the transaction altogether,
- b. correct/modify the erroneous price at which the transactions were executed to the price at which the Company hedged the transaction,
- c. correct the erroneous price alternatively to the fair market value of the price, as determined by the Company, in its sole discretion, at the time such error occurred.

17.3. In cases where the prevailing market prices represent prices different from the prices that were offered on Online Trading Platform(s), the Company will endeavor to execute transactions on or close to the prevailing market prices, or at prices that the Company deems to be reasonable.

17.4. Mistype of a quote or misquote might be given by telephone and/or electronic means. On such occasions, the Company will not be held liable for any resulting errors that may be displayed in the Client's accounts and reserves the right to make necessary corrections or adjustments with respect to the accounts involved.

17.5. Any errors (as outlined in the present clause) may adversely affect realized and unrealized gains and losses of accounts. The Client explicitly agrees that the Company shall not be liable for any such adverse effect, and the occurrence of pricing errors does not entitle the Client to be reimbursed with any gains generated from such error, either by the Company or the Company's insurance providers.

18. ABUSIVE TRADING STRATEGIES

18.1. The Client undertakes not to act in any way unlawfully under this Agreement.

18.2. The Client agrees not to deliberately enter into riskless trading activity and not to trade in a manner that would amount to any type of market abuse and/or manipulation (either by the Client themselves or acting jointly with another person), e.g., by entering the market in opposite directions just before a major event, which is expected to cause high market volatility.

18.3. Similarly, practices that deliberately aim to exploit negative balance protection are considered to be abusive and therefore not acceptable by the Company.

18.4. Further, the Client understands that market abuse encompasses unlawful behavior in the financial markets, which includes but is not limited to insider trading, unlawful disclosure of inside information and market manipulation, and the Client furthermore undertakes not to act in any way unlawfully under this Agreement.

18.5. Trading strategies aimed at exploiting errors in prices and/or concluding transactions at prices that are not representing the market value, are not permitted/accepted.

18.6. The Company reserves the right to act upon clients found to be using abusive trading strategies, whether by using sophisticated technology or manual methods when such trading is based on errors.

18.7. Clients' trading accounts found to be using the abusive trading strategies, associated with algorithmic and high frequency trading are subject to corrections/modifications and in cases may be subject to closure of the trading accounts, should the Company find such an activity fit.

18.8. The Company is entitled to take one or more of the following counter measures:

- a. adjust the prices provided to the Client;
- b. adjust the price spreads offered to the Client;
- c. change the trading conditions/limitations applied to the Client's accounts;
- d. cancel and/or reverse the transactions;
- e. delay in price confirmation and/or re-quote the prices offered;
- f. restrict the Client's access to streaming, instantly tradable quotes, by providing manual quotation only;
- g. retrieve from the Client's accounts any historic trading profits, provided that the Company can document that such trading profits have been made through exploiting of errors in prices, at any time during the relationship with the Client;
- h. deduct and/or recover any applicable charges, costs, or fees on deposits, withdrawals, as outlined in Clause 6 above, including any other charges generally not previously applied. This includes the right to recover such amounts if the account holder is suspected to have engaged in abusive behavior at any time.
- i. terminate the relationship with the Client immediately;
- j. any other action that may be relevant for the Company to take.

18.9. Trading strategies where transactions are executed within a short time scale, may be permitted by the Company for as long as the trading strategy used by the Client is not considered abusive.

18.10. However, should the Client base the trading strategy for the purpose of abusing prices offered by the Company, the Company is entitled to take one or more of the above mentioned counter measures.

18.11. Swap-free offers that are provided to clients primarily engaging in normal trading activity, where the majority of their trading volume is opened and closed within a single trading day. Clients who solely maintain positions with negative swap values for extended periods without engaging in intraday trading activity will be disqualified from swap-free offers or storage group benefits and the company has the right to proceed with the necessary adjustments as the Company deems fit and terminate their account taking any of the steps mentioned above.

19. EXERCISES AND ASSIGNMENTS

With regard to options transactions, the Client understands that some exchange clearing houses have established exercise requirements for the tender of exercise instructions and that option will become worthless in the event that the Client does not deliver instructions by such expiration times. At least two business days prior to the first notice day in the case of long positions in futures or forward contracts, and at least two business days prior to the last trading day in the case of short positions in open futures or forward contracts or long and short positions in options, the Client agrees that the Client will either give the Company instructions to liquidate or make or take delivery under such futures or forward contracts, or to liquidate, exercise, or allow the expiration of such options, and will deliver to the Company sufficient funds and/or any documents required in connection with exercise or delivery. If such instructions or such funds and/or documents, with regard to option transactions, are not received by the Company prior to the expiration of the option, the Company may permit an option to expire. The Client also understands that certain exchanges and clearing houses automatically exercise some "in the-money" options unless instructed otherwise. The Client acknowledges full responsibility for taking action either to exercise or to prevent exercise of an option contract, as the case may be; the Company is not required to take any action with respect to an option, including without limitation any action to exercise a valuable option contract prior to its expiration or to prevent the automatic exercise of an option, except upon the Client's express instructions. The Client further understands that the Company also has established exercise cut-off times which may be different from the times established by the contract markets in clearing houses. In the event that timely exercise and assignment instructions are not given, the Client hereby agrees to waive any and all claims for damage or loss the Client might have against the Company arising out of the fact that an option was or was not exercised. The Client understands that the Company randomly assigns exercise notices to clients, that all short option positions are subject to assignment at any time, including positions established on the same day that exercises are assigned, and that exercise assignment notices are allocated randomly from among all clients' short option positions which are subject to exercise.

20. SECURITY AGREEMENT

20.1. Financial Instruments, funds, securities, and/or other property in the Client's accounts or elsewhere now or at any time in the future held by the Company for any purpose, including safekeeping, are subject to a security interest and general lien in the Company's favor to secure any indebtedness at any time owed by the Client to the Company, including any indebtedness resulting from any guarantee of a transaction or account of the Client or the Client's assumption of joint responsibility for any transaction or account. From time to time and without prior notice to the Client, the Company may transfer interchangeably between and among accounts of the Client, held by the Company, any of the Client's funds (including segregated funds), securities, commodities, Financial Instruments and/or other property for purposes of margin, reduction or satisfaction of any debit balance, or any reason which the Company deems appropriate. Within a reasonable time after any such transfer, the Company will confirm the transfer in writing to the Client;

20.2. The Client hereby grants to the Company the right to pledge, repledge, hypothecate, or invest either separately or with the property of other clients, any securities or other property held by the Company for the Client's accounts or as collateral therefore, including without limitation to any exchange or clearing house through which transactions of the Client are executed. The Company shall be under no obligation to pay to the Client or to his/her accounts for any interest income or benefit derived from such property and funds or to deliver the same securities or other property deposited with or received by the Company for the Client. The Company may deliver securities or other property of like or equivalent kind or amount; the Company shall have the right to offset any amounts it holds for or owes to the Client against any debts or other amounts owed by the Client to the Company.

21. AUTHORITY TO EFFECT TRANSFER

The Company is further authorized to transfer any property held in any such accounts of the Client whenever, in the Company's sole judgment, such transfer is necessary in order to effectuate the above authorized action. Within a reasonable time after making any such transfer, the Company will confirm same in writing to the Client.

22. INACTIVE AND ARCHIVED ACCOUNTS

22.1. The Client acknowledges and confirms that accounts, held with the Company, without any trading activity for a period of six (6) months, are considered to be inactive accounts. Such inactive accounts will no longer be available for trading and will be subject to relevant charges/costs relating to the maintenance/administration of such inactive accounts.

- 22.2. The Client acknowledges and confirms that any accounts with the Company without any trading activity for a period of one month or more with zero balance are considered inactive accounts.
- 22.3. The Client further agrees that, in order to resume trading, additional conditions set by the Company should be met.
- 22.4. The Client acknowledges and agrees that inactive accounts are further considered dormant accounts and removed from the systems accordingly.
- 22.5. The Company may, at its absolute discretion, also terminate any of the Client's additional accounts which the Company considers that are not being used. It is clarified that a Client may open an additional account with the Company after a purpose for the account opening is established and justified.
- 22.6. Regardless if the account is active or inactive, in case the Client's account reaches 10,000 transactions (i.e. each trade, deposit, withdrawal, maintenance charge etc. is considered as 1 transaction) the Company may choose to archive that account and replace it with a new account number. The historical data of an account that is archived remain accessible to the client for view only purposes.

23. NOTICES AND COMMUNICATIONS

The Client shall deliver all notices and communications to the Company by using any of the available communication means, as provided on the Company's website. All communications from the Company to the Client may be sent to the Client at the address indicated on the Client Account Application or to such other last known address as the Client thereafter directs in writing. In addition, communication may be effected by telex, courier, telephone, telegraph, messenger, facsimile, electronic mail, chatting system or otherwise (in the case of mailed notices), or communicated (in the case of telephone notices), sent to the Client at the Client's or designated agent's or representative's address (or telephone number), as given to the Company from time to time, shall constitute personal delivery to the Client whether or not actually received by the Client, and the Client hereby waives all claims resulting from failure to receive such communication. Confirmation of transactions, balances, equity, orders/requests, margin calls etc., either through statements of accounts or through Online Trading Platform(s), shall be binding on the Client for all purposes, unless the Client calls any error therein to the Company's attention in writing prior to the start of business on the next business day following such occurrence and within maximum 24 hours. None of these provisions, however, will prevent the Company, upon discovery of any error or omission, from correcting it. The parties agree that such errors, whether resulting in profit or loss, will be corrected in the Client's accounts; the account will be credited or debited so that it is in the same position it would have been if the error had not occurred. Whenever a correction is made, the Company will promptly make written or oral notification to the Client. Client agrees and understands that it is Client's responsibility to send written notice of any change of any personal details.

24. PRINTED MEDIA STORAGE

The Client acknowledges and agrees that the Company may reduce all documentation relating to the Client's accounts, including but not limited to the documents provided by the Client when opening accounts with the Company, by utilizing a printed media storage device such as micro-fiche or optical disc imaging. ## RISK DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

This brief statement does not disclose all risks and other significant aspects related to trading with Financial Instruments such as futures, options, commodities, contracts for differences, foreign exchange and other instruments ("Financial Instruments"). In light of the risks, the Client should undertake such transactions only if the Client understands the nature of the Financial Instruments (and contractual relationships) into which the Client is entering and the extent of the Client's exposure to risk.

Trading with Financial Instruments is not suitable for many members of the public. The Client should carefully consider whether trading is appropriate for the Client in the light of the Client's experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances.

FUTURES

1. Effect of "Leverage" or "Gearing"

Transactions in futures carry a high degree of risk. The amount of initial margin is small relative to the value of the future contracts so that transactions are "leveraged" and "geared." A relatively small market movement will have a proportionately larger impact on the funds deposited or will have to be deposited by the Client; this may work against the Client as well as for the Client. The Client may sustain a total loss of initial margin funds and any additional funds deposited with the Company to maintain the Client's open positions/transactions. If the market moves against the Client's open positions/transactions or margin levels are increased, the Client may be called upon to pay substantial additional funds on short notice to maintain the Client's open positions/transactions. If the Client fails to comply with a request for additional funds within the time prescribed, the Client's open positions/transactions may be liquidated with a loss and the Client will be liable for any resulting deficit.

2. Risk-reducing orders/requests or strategies

The placing of certain types of orders/requests (e.g., "stop-loss" order/request, or "stop-limit" order/request, where permitted) which are intended to limit losses of open positions/transactions to certain amounts, may not be effective because market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders/requests. Strategies using combinations of positions/transactions, such as "spread" and "straddle" positions/transactions may be as risky as taking simple "long" or "short" positions/transactions. The Client should get familiar with the execution venues related to specific types of orders/requests.

OPTIONS

Transactions in options carry a high degree of risk. Purchasers and sellers of options should familiarize themselves with the type of option (i.e. "put" or "call") which they contemplate trading and the associated risks. The Client should calculate the extent to which the value of the options must increase for the Client's open position to become profitable, taking into account the premium and all transaction costs. The purchaser of options may offset or exercise the options or allow the options to expire. The exercise of an option results either in a cash settlement or in the purchaser acquiring or delivering the underlying interest. If the option is on a future contract, the purchaser will acquire a futures open position with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures above). If the purchased options expire worthless, the Client will suffer a total loss of the Client's investment which will consist of the option premium plus transaction costs. If the Client is contemplating purchasing deep-out- of-the-money options, the Client should be aware that the chance of such options becoming profitable ordinarily is remote. Selling ("writing" or "granting") an option generally entails considerably greater risk than purchasing options. Although the premium received by the seller is fixed, the seller may sustain a loss well in excess of that amount. The seller will be liable for additional margin to maintain the position if the market moves unfavorably. The seller will also be exposed to the risk of the purchaser exercising the option and the seller will be obligated to either settle the option in cash or to acquire or deliver the underlying interest. If the option is on a future, the seller will acquire a position in a future with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures above). If the option is "covered" by the seller holding a corresponding position in the underlying interest or a future contract or another option, the risk may be reduced. If the option is not covered, the risk of loss can be unlimited. Certain exchanges in some jurisdictions permit deferred payment of the option premium, exposing the purchaser to liability for margin payments not exceeding the amount of the premium. The purchaser is still subject to the risk of losing the premium and transaction costs. When the option is exercised or expires, the purchaser is responsible for any unpaid premium outstanding at that time.

OFF EXCHANGE TRANSACTIONS / OTC

The Company is acting as the Client's counterparty to the off exchange ("OTC") transaction. It may be difficult or impossible to liquidate an existing open position/transaction, to assess the value, to determine a fair price or to assess the exposure to risk and for these reasons, these transactions may involve increased risks. Off-exchange transactions may be less regulated or subject to a separate regulatory regime due to the fact that there is no exchange or central clearing house to support the transaction. Before the Client undertakes such transactions, the Client should familiarize himself/herself with applicable rules and related risks. The Client should get familiar with the execution venues related to specific types of orders/requests and Financial Instruments.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Foreign Exchange can be highly volatile and transactions therein carry a substantial risk of loss.

The high degree of "gearing" or "leverage" which is often obtainable in trading stems from the payment of what is comparatively modest deposit or margin when compared with the overall contract value. As a result, a relatively small market movement can, in addition to achieving substantial gains, where the market is in the Client's favor, result in substantial loss which may exceed the Client's original investment where there is an equally small market movement against the Client.

The Client's risk exposure increases if the Client's transactions are denominated in a foreign currency or in a basic currency.

The Client should get familiar with the execution venues related to specific types of orders/requests and Financial Instruments.

CONTRACT FOR DIFFERENCES (CFDs)

Financial instruments can also be traded as contracts for differences ("CFDs"). These can be futures and options on the FTSE100 index or any other index or share, as well as currency and interest swaps. However, unlike other futures and options, these contracts can only be settled in cash. Investing in CFDs carries the same risk as investing in futures or options and Client should be aware of these as set out above. Transaction in CFDs may also have a contingent liability and the Client should be aware of the implication of this.

The Client should get familiar with the execution venues, costs and any other information related to specific types of orders/requests and Financial Instruments.

ADDITIONAL RISKS

I. Terms and conditions of contracts

The Client should request from the Company to be provided with the terms and conditions for trading with the specific Financial Instrument and type of account as well as associated obligations (e.g. the circumstances under which the Client may become obligated to make or take delivery of the underlying interest of a future contract and, in respect of options, expiration dates and restrictions on the time for exercise). Under certain circumstances, the specifications of outstanding contracts (including the exercise price of an option) may be modified by the exchange or clearing house to reflect changes in the underlying interest.

II. Suspension or restriction of trading and pricing relationships

Market conditions (e.g. liquidity) and/or the operation of the rules of certain markets (e.g. the suspension of trading for any Financial Instrument, trading hours, dealing hours etc. may increase the risk of loss by making it difficult or impossible to effect transactions or liquidate/offset open positions/transactions. If the Client has sold options, this may increase the risk of loss. Further, normal pricing relationships between the underlying interest and the future, and the underlying interest and the option may not exist. This can occur when, for example, the futures contract underlying the option is subject to price limits while the option is not. The absence of an underlying reference price may make it difficult to judge "fair" value to the transaction. It may be difficult or impossible to liquidate an existing open position/transaction, to assess the value, to determine a fair price or to assess the exposure to risk. For these reasons, these transactions may involve increased risks. Market conditions are related to all types of Financial Instruments.

III. Deposited cash and property

The Client should get familiarized with the protections of the Client's money or other property deposited by the Client for trading with Financial Instruments, particularly in the event of a firm's insolvency or bankruptcy. The extent to which the Client may recover the Client's money or other property may be governed by specific legislation or local rules. In some jurisdictions property which had been specifically identifiable as the Client's own property will be appropriated in the same manner as cash for purposes of distribution in the event of a shortfall.

IV. Commission and other charges/costs

Before the Client begins to trade, the Client should obtain a clear explanation of all commissions, fees and other charges/costs for which the Client will be liable. These charges/costs will affect the Client's net profit (if any) or increase the Client's loss.

V. Limiting losses

Where permitted, placing a stop-loss order/request will not necessarily limit the Client's losses to the intended amounts, for market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders/requests at the stipulated price. A spread, straddle or hedge position/transaction may be risky as a simple long or short position/transaction and can be more complex.

VI. Transactions

Transactions with Financial Instruments on specific markets may expose the Client to additional risk. Such markets may be subject to regulation which may offer different or diminished investor protection.

Before the Client begins to trade, the Client should enquire about any rules relevant to the particular transactions related to specific Financial Instruments. The Client's local regulatory authority will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where Client's transactions have been effected.

VII. Currency risks

The profit or loss for transactions in foreign currency-denominated contracts will be affected by fluctuations in currency rates when there is a need to convert from the currency denomination of the contract into another currency.

VIII. Trading facilities

Most open-outcry and electronic trading facilities are supported by computer-based component systems for the orders/requests routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of transactions. As with all facilities and systems, they are vulnerable to temporary disruption or failure. The Client may ascertain losses and the ability to recover certain losses may be subject to limits on liability imposed by the system provider, the market, the clearing house and/or member firms.

IX. Electronic trading

Trading on an electronic trading system may differ not only from trading in an open-outcry market but also from trading on other electronic trading systems. If the Client undertakes transactions on an electronic trading system, the Client will be exposed to risks associated with the specific electronic trading system including the failure of hardware and software. The result of any system failure may be that the Client's orders/requests are either not executed according to the Client's instructions or are not executed at all.
